

arms, with return to the pastoral, and in no case more than eight years in the preceding position.

It is practically accepted that Rev. J. P. Latham will go to Glenwood, N. C., to succeed Dr. J. H. Bennett at the latter place. Rev. J. H. Bennett will get either Rev. R. H. Bennett or Rev. J. H. Latham. Rev. J. H. Latham will succeed Dr. J. H. Bennett at the latter place. Rev. J. H. Latham will get either Rev. R. H. Bennett or Rev. J. H. Latham. Rev. J. H. Latham will succeed Dr. J. H. Bennett at the latter place.

Among those who are mentioned for preaching elsewhere in different districts are the Rev. T. McN. Simpson and the Rev. W. J. Edwards. A member of the board of the Richmond Board of Christian Missions, Rev. J. H. Latham, was quoted to-night as saying that most of the smaller country churches were now settled upon, but that many of the larger churches had not been definitely settled in their appointments. The council will meet again to-morrow afternoon, when it is hoped to conclude the list of appointments.

The opening of the conference this morning was presided over by Bishop C. B. Galloway. Miss Whitehead, daughter of the late Dr. Paul Whitehead, former secretary of the conference, had written that a large number of bound and unbound pamphlets, the property of her father, were placed in the hands of the Virginia Conference. The secretary was instructed to express the thanks of the conference to the donor of these valuable historical documents, which will be placed among the archives of the Virginia Conference.

Rev. J. H. Latham, D. D., president of the conference, was elected to the executive committee. The report expressed regret that the subscription list had not been enlarged and that the financial showing was not good.

Owing to the increased cost of production the committee recommended that the price be raised from $1.50 to $2 per year. This paper was highly commended and recommended to all families in the conference. The report was read by the committee on publishing interests.

Eleven A. M. to-day was fixed as the special hour for the laying on of hands by the Board of Missions and to-night as the special time for the missionary anniversary service.

Reports of the general secretary of the Epworth League and of the Sunday school editor were presented to the committee on those subjects without being read in full.

A letter of welcome from the Petersburg Chamber of Commerce was read, offering the use of its rooms for committee purposes, and the thanks of the conference were expressed.

Communication from Rev. J. C. C. Newton, of Japan, telling of the formation of the Japan Methodist Church, was read. The president, who is his name be re-elected as a member of the Virginia Conference.

A resolution passed by the Ministerial Association, which was read in Richmond looking to better observance of the Sabbath was read, and referred to the Committee on Sabbath Observance.

To Hold Memorial Service. It was ordered that a special session of the conference be held in the Washington Street Church on Monday, November 18, at 10 o'clock, for the purpose of holding memorial services for the deceased members of the conference who died during the year, and their memoirs will be read by persons appointed for the purpose. The committee on memorial services in the conference who have died during the year, and their memoirs will be read by persons appointed for the purpose.

Rev. C. L. Bane, D. D., presiding elder, called for continuation of question 20: Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? and a number of ministers reported and were passed in the affirmative.

When the names of the Rev. C. L. Bane, of the Berkeley Memorial Church, and Rev. J. H. Latham, of the latter church, were called, Rev. J. H. Latham, of the latter church, was called, and Rev. J. H. Latham, of the latter church, was called.

Mr. W. J. Tilley, a lay member, offered a resolution expressing the sympathy of the conference with the many who are suffering from the effects of the influenza epidemic, and the conference was adjourned.

Mr. Bane's name was at his own request, dropped from the roll of the conference, and the conference was adjourned.

It was learned from those who know Mr. Bane intimately, however, that he has been separated from his wife, and that she is in a delicate state of health, and that he is in a delicate state of health.

For Supernatural List. Rev. Edgar A. Potts, an elder of the Charlottesville District, who is referred to the committee on conference relations for the supernatural relation. The committee on conference relations for the supernatural relation.

Rev. T. P. Duke, of Rappahannock District, whose defective sight was reported, was also referred to the supernatural relation.

A collection was taken for Rev. Mr. Duke, who was reported as in narrow circumstances, his presiding elder testifying both to his need and to the genuineness of his case, and $20.00 was also realized for the relief of this infirm old preacher.

Paternal Greetings. A telegram of greetings from the Baptist General Association, meeting in Danville, Va., was read.

"Danville, Va." "Virginia Baptists in General Association assembled send Christian greetings." "The morning cometh." "Virginia for Christ." "HUGH C. SMITH, Sec'y."

The secretary was instructed to make a suitable response to the Baptist General Association.

Their Character Passed. Question 2. "Who remain on trial?" was called by the Bishop, and James T. Moore was called. His character was examined and approved, and he was passed to the class of the second year.

Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health. Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health.

Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health. Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health.

Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health. Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health.

Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health. Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health.

Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health. Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health.

Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health. Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health.

Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health. Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health.

Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health. Mr. C. B. Galloway, of Charlottesville, was called, and he was passed down in health.

"Berry's for Clothes."

We are making a Big Boys' Clothing Display because this is a big business we're engaged in—clothing the future men of Richmond.

Hold us responsible for the appearance of the boys of Richmond, and give us credit for the resultant economy of buying your boys' clothing here.

Our stock is full of all the good new things. Norfolk and double-breasted suits for the larger boys, $3.50 to $15.

Sailor and Russian Suits for smaller boys, $3.50 to $8.50. Boys' and Children's Underwear, 50 cents.

Everything else boys wear.

C. H. Berry & Co.
MEN'S & BOYS' CLOTHING

placed in teaching school on the Eastern Shore. No application came from the Eastern Shore, and on motion his character was passed and he was continued in his present position.

John W. Shackford, of Lynchburg, on approval of the committee Mr. Shackford was passed to the class of the second year.

William P. Province, of West Buckingham Circuit, was called, and on motion his character was passed, and he was continued in his present position.

Work of Laymen. On call for the order of the day the members of the Board of Missions presented the laymen's missionary movement. The Rev. Edward Cook, one of the secretaries of the General Board, addressed the body in behalf of the laymen's missionary work.

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Leaves the Ministry

REV. C. L. BANE, former Richmond pastor, who, at his own request, is dropped from conference roll.

ers are elected in full connection as elders."

Henry W. Davis was elected an elder, having passed the required examinations.

Harker Memorial Report. Kenneth W. Meers, of Harker Memorial Church, Richmond, reported on his work. His examination was approved and he was elected an elder.

The presiding elder, Dr. Tabor, moved that Mr. Meers' name be referred to the committee for the subject of the class of the second year.

John W. Shackford, of Lynchburg, on approval of the committee Mr. Shackford was passed to the class of the second year.

William P. Province, of West Buckingham Circuit, was called, and on motion his character was passed, and he was continued in his present position.

Work of Laymen. On call for the order of the day the members of the Board of Missions presented the laymen's missionary movement. The Rev. Edward Cook, one of the secretaries of the General Board, addressed the body in behalf of the laymen's missionary work.

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

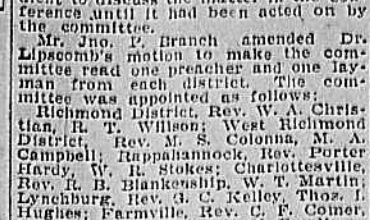

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

"Berry's for Clothes."

We are making a Big Boys' Clothing Display because this is a big business we're engaged in—clothing the future men of Richmond.

Hold us responsible for the appearance of the boys of Richmond, and give us credit for the resultant economy of buying your boys' clothing here.

Our stock is full of all the good new things. Norfolk and double-breasted suits for the larger boys, $3.50 to $15.

Sailor and Russian Suits for smaller boys, $3.50 to $8.50. Boys' and Children's Underwear, 50 cents.

Everything else boys wear.

C. H. Berry & Co.
MEN'S & BOYS' CLOTHING

placed in teaching school on the Eastern Shore. No application came from the Eastern Shore, and on motion his character was passed and he was continued in his present position.

John W. Shackford, of Lynchburg, on approval of the committee Mr. Shackford was passed to the class of the second year.

William P. Province, of West Buckingham Circuit, was called, and on motion his character was passed, and he was continued in his present position.

Work of Laymen. On call for the order of the day the members of the Board of Missions presented the laymen's missionary movement. The Rev. Edward Cook, one of the secretaries of the General Board, addressed the body in behalf of the laymen's missionary work.

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

Dr. Cook sketched briefly the history of the laymen's movement, which is assuming shape in nearly every denomination in this country. Beginning with the famous Haystack prayer meeting in New York City, he showed how the movement is sweeping through the various Christian churches.

"The movement," he said, "is not a society for the selection of missionaries or sending them out. It is a movement, life, action, usefulness, and the strong men of America in the largest of all enterprises, the conquest of the world for Christ in a generation."

"Berry's for Clothes."

We are making a Big Boys' Clothing Display because this is a big business we're engaged in—clothing the future men of Richmond.

Hold us responsible for the appearance of the boys of Richmond, and give us credit for the resultant economy of buying your boys' clothing here.

Our stock is full of all the good new things. Norfolk and double-breasted suits for the larger boys, $3.50 to $15.

Sailor and Russian Suits for smaller boys, $3.50 to $8.50. Boys' and Children's Underwear, 50 cents.

Everything else boys wear.

C. H. Berry & Co.
MEN'S & BOYS' CLOTHING

placed in teaching school on the Eastern Shore. No application came from the Eastern Shore, and on motion his character was passed and he was continued in his present position.

John W. Shackford, of Lynchburg, on approval of the committee Mr. Shackford was passed to the class of the second year.

William P. Province, of West Buckingham Circuit, was called, and on motion his character was passed, and he was continued in his present position.

Work of Laymen. On call for the order of the day the members of the Board of Missions presented the laymen's missionary movement. The Rev. Edward Cook, one of the secretaries of the General Board, addressed the body in behalf of the laymen's missionary work.